Individuality Based on the Range Rover

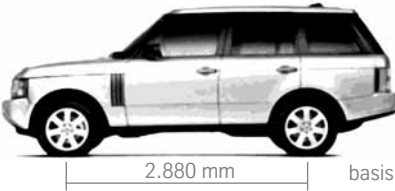

Experience uniqueness.

The special vehicle construction division of ThyssenKrupp Drauz Nothelfer GmbH has made it its task to use state-of-the-art automotive technology to make this exclusive vehicle even more individual for you.

Within six months, ThyssenKrupp Drauz Nothelfer special vehicle construction has developed and built two completely different stretch versions of the Range Rover.

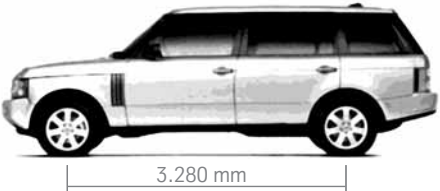

The luxurious appearance of the Range Rover is even more emphasised by the stretching.

Top driving comfort paired with individual automobile design of the highest standards make the stretch version of the Range Rover something special and unique.

Understatement Stretching

A discreet stretching of the front door by 150 mm and of the rear door by 250 mm and the appropriate adjustment and new design of the body linking preserve the familiar look of the vehicle.

Conventional Centre Door Stretching

More space and improved comfort. By integrating a second B-column with a centre door designed as a service door, the vehicle was made 500 mm longer to provide even more freedom of movement to the passengers.

Both stretching versions have one thing in common: They widely preserve the typical and appreciated basic characteristics of the vehicle and provide the perfect synthesis of space and dynamics.
